Stocks Dull.
NEW YORK, June 28.—The same factors and considerations which have governed the market throughout the months were operative again today in more acute form. A new record of the dullness was set at the end of the month, with prices dwindle to the insignificant total of $4,000 shares.

The market week-end was mostly of a character to chill bullish sentiment even if the technical position of the market had been favorable. The return of the federal reserve banks plainly indicated that the process of deflation had not yet reached its headway and the banking development were far from encouraging.
